Explore and collect

Collecting insights and data. Understand the core of the business. Asking questions. Desk research as well as field research: Interviewing the target audience, understanding what sparks their inspiration. Finding inspiration from similar brands, stories and scenarios. Sketching solutions, asking for feedback, experimenting with variations. Finding the outskirts of the storyline to capture the core of it.

Extract and validate

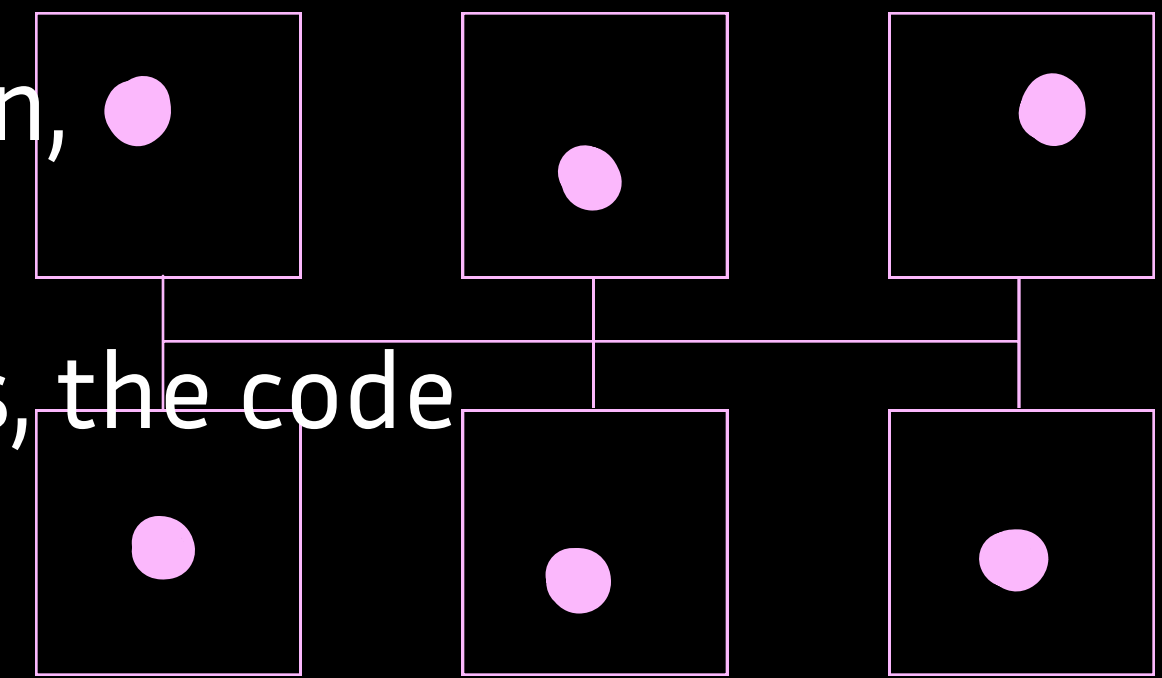

Turn the insights and data upside down and inside out. Validate that the selected core of the storytelling is the most relevant. Asking more questions. Validate ideas and concepts. Synthesize the findings and feedback. Identify the elements that form the core of the story. Sketching details for the solution. Planning the build process.

Structure, build and document

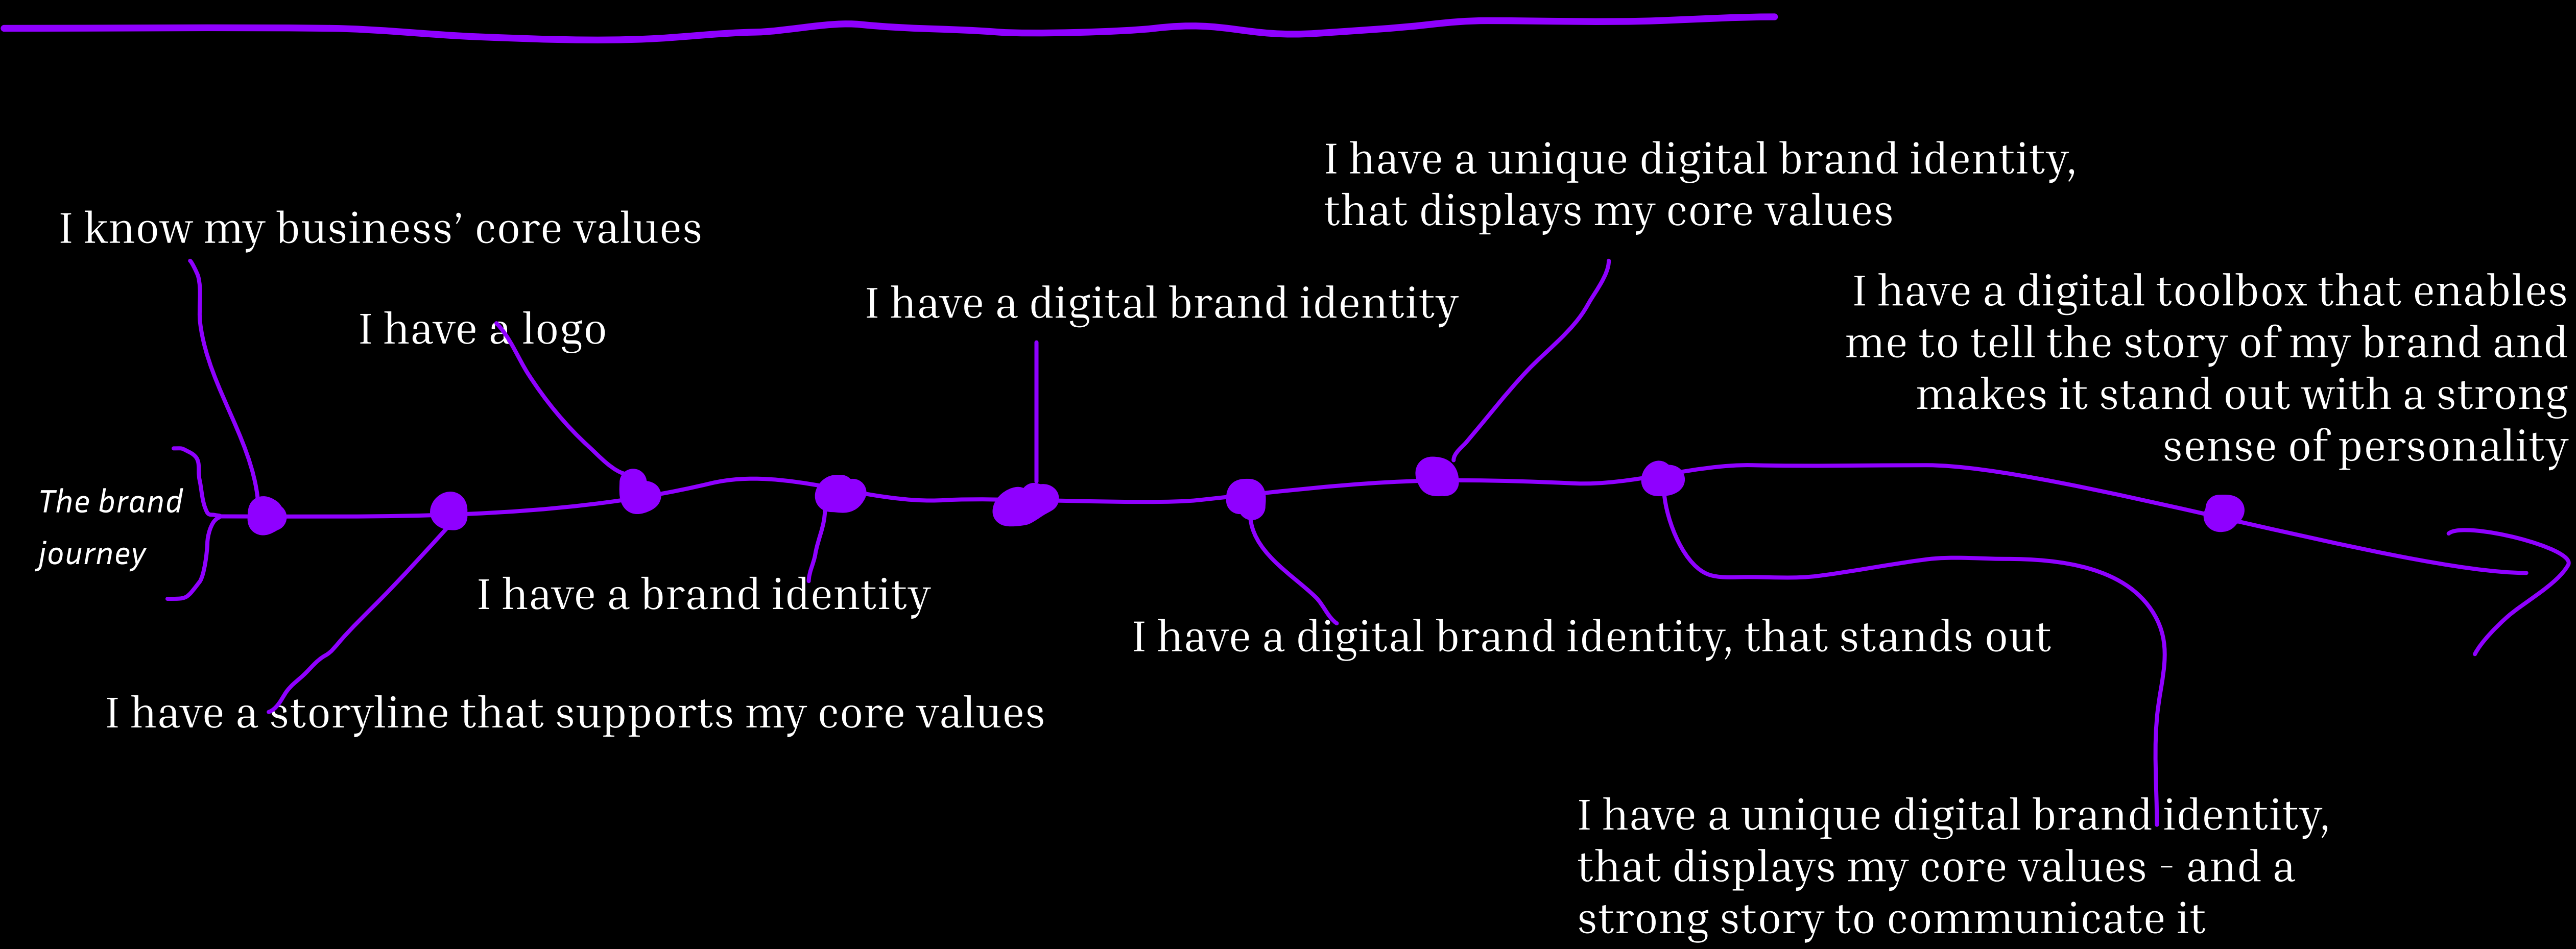

Structuring the core elements. Designing and building the solution, iterating and finetuning.

Testing and documenting the core principles, the design elements, the code and how to use the solution.

Handing everything over with love and care.
